

W.Va. trail projects getting federal help - Outdoors - The Charleston Gazette - West Virginia News and Sports -

<http://wvgazette.com/Outdoors/201201150073>

Februray 2, 2012

January 15, 2012

W.Va. trail projects getting federal help

CHARLESTON, W.Va. -- The National Park Service is helping local communities implement more than 200 natural resource and recreational projects, including some in West Virginia.

The Associated Press

Advertiser

CHARLESTON, W.Va. -- The National Park Service is helping local communities implement more than 200 natural resource and recreational projects, including some in West Virginia.

Secretary of the Interior Ken Salazar announced the partnerships with the agency's Rivers, Trails and Conservation Assistance Program this week as part of the America's Great Outdoors initiative.

Those include partnerships with the Cacapon and Lost Rivers Land Trust for the Cacapon River State Water Trail, and the C&O Canal National Historical Park and others on Canal Towns Heritage Tourism. It also will partner with the Fayette and Greenbrier County Commissions on the Meadow River Rail, the Ohio River Trail Council on the Ohio River Trail, Friends of the Cheat on the Preston County Trail, and the Eastern Panhandle Trailblazers Association on the Ranson-Lower Harpers Ferry Loop Trail.

CHARLESTON, W.Va. -- The National Park Service is helping local communities implement more than 200 natural resource and recreational projects, including some in West Virginia.

Secretary of the Interior Ken Salazar announced the partnerships with the agency's Rivers, Trails and Conservation Assistance Program this week as part of the America's Great Outdoors initiative.

Those include partnerships with the Cacapon and Lost Rivers Land Trust for the Cacapon River State Water Trail, and the C&O Canal National Historical Park and others on Canal Towns Heritage Tourism. It also will partner with the Fayette and Greenbrier County Commissions on the Meadow River Rail, the Ohio River Trail Council on the Ohio River Trail, Friends of the Cheat on the Preston County Trail, and the Eastern Panhandle Trailblazers Association on the Ranson-Lower Harpers Ferry Loop Trail.