How Beaver County was named

The name "Beaver" was given to the county from the stream and town called at the time of its earliest settlers, and the town had been named for the stream. As to the origin of the name of the stream itself, we need not be in any doubt. It was a translation into English of the Indian word for beaver, the much-prized animal after which the local Indians had named the stream. The Delawares called the stream Amockwi-sipu, or literally, "beaver stream." They gave this name to the creek because of its being a favorite home of the beaver.

The French, who were the first whites to reach this region, merely translated the Indian name for the stream calling it, as we have learned from a map in Pouchot's memoirs, River au Castor, (Beaver River), and the English when they arrived, called it the same name. Before the mapping of the town and outlets at the mouth of the stream, under the Act of September 28, 1791, the point was known by the Indian names of Sawkunk and Shingoe's Town, later by the English as "the old French town." Later it was called McIntosh, from the fort there and the town that was created by legislative action was called Beaver. And it was determined to be county seat of the new county in its beginning stage of development. Thus, it was natural that when the time came for the creation of the county, it should receive a name associated with the most important stream and locality belonging distinctively to its territory, and was accordingly called Beaver.

Beaver County Regatta

This annual event held in the rivertown of Bridgewater will be held August 19-21. The event is crammed full of activities, such as the Children's Fishing Derby, drag boat racing, a cake walk, a chicken wing and hot dog eating contest, and the ever-popular milk drinking contest.

And what would a Beaver County festival be without music? Local bands fill the air with a variety of music ranging from Celtic to Southern Rock. Also included at the event is a children's area, especially designed for the little members of the family. They will be able to enjoy face painting, a balloon artist, and bouncers, just to name a few.

Food vendors will line Riverside Drive for your festival dining pleasure, ranging from hot dogs to chicken or rib dinners can be found. Desserts will also be available for those with a sweet tooth.

As the festival name implies, it is a regatta and boats will come from all parts of the country to compete for cash prizes. Drag boats will thunder down the Beaver River at speeds in excess of 170 miles per hour, leaving you in awe of their sheer power and your eardrums ringing.

Some more relaxed boaters will take a slower pace in the Anything That Floats Race. This is a competition where folks can fabricate a boat (or some type of floating device) and race against other entrants to the finish line. It must be human powered, as no engines are allowed. This event is one of the highlights of the festival and more often than not, has some of the entrants capsizing or sinking, much to the delight of the observers on shore.

Boaters coming in from the tri-state area will find plenty of mooring areas at more than six local marinas, along with some public docking located a short distance away.

The motto of the Beaver County River Regatta is "Family, Friends and Tradition." Admission to all the events is free and we hope you can come out and enjoy it this year.

STATE PARKS

The Pennsylvania State Parks provide opportunities for enjoying healthful outdoor recreation and serve as outdoor classrooms for environmental education. In meeting these purposes, the conservation of the natural, scenic, aesthetic and historical values of parks are given first consideration. Stewardship responsibilities should be carried out in a way that protects the natural outdoor experience for the enjoyment of current and future generations.

Raccoon Creek State Park has continued to develop from the park's beginning as a Recreational Demonstration Area operated by the National Park Service in the 1930s, to one of the largest and most beautiful parks in the state. In 1945, the planned transfer of land took place creating Raccoon Creek State Park. The facilities at the park are a mix from the early Civilian Conservation Corps camp to modern facilities.

A centrally located 101-acre lake with an accessible fishing pier allows anglers to seek a number of fish species, including brook and rainbow trout that are stocked and found both in the lake and feeder streams. The lake also has an 800-foot, accessible sand/turf beach that is open daily from late-May to mid-September. It provides opportunities for active recreation as well as passive activities such as photographing and viewing waterfowl and other species of wildlife. Raccoon Lake has two boat launches and 48 mooring spaces (electric motors only). A boat rental is open from the first day of trout season until mid-October and has canoes, rowboats, kayaks, hydro-bikes, in addition to bait and tackle, refreshments and firewood for sale. A food concession is located at the beach area and is open from Memorial Day weekend to Labor Day weekend.

Activities at the park include boating, fishing, swimming, picnicking, camping, modern cabin rentals, organized group camping, backpack camping, bicycling, cross country skiing, hiking, bridle trails, winter activities, and hunting. Features include historical Frankfort Mineral Springs, Kings Creek Cemetery, the Wildflower Reserve with nature center, and 44 miles of trails available throughout the park including a 20-mile backpack loop trail. Modern camping available mid-April, through mid-October. Cabins and primitive camping available year round.

The area once attracted thousands of visitors who believed in the "healing powers" of mineral water, until it was destroyed by fire in 1932. Although the flow of spring water has diminished, many believe the water still retains "medicinal" properties. The streambed trail abounds with wildflowers in season, and in the winter the grotto displays beautiful ice formations. Trails are open year-round from sunrise to sunset.

Wildlife is abundant and you may encounter deer, raccoon, turkey, mink, woodchucks and a host of birds and other forms of wildlife. Environmental education and interpretive programs are scheduled throughout the year on a wide variety of topics.
