

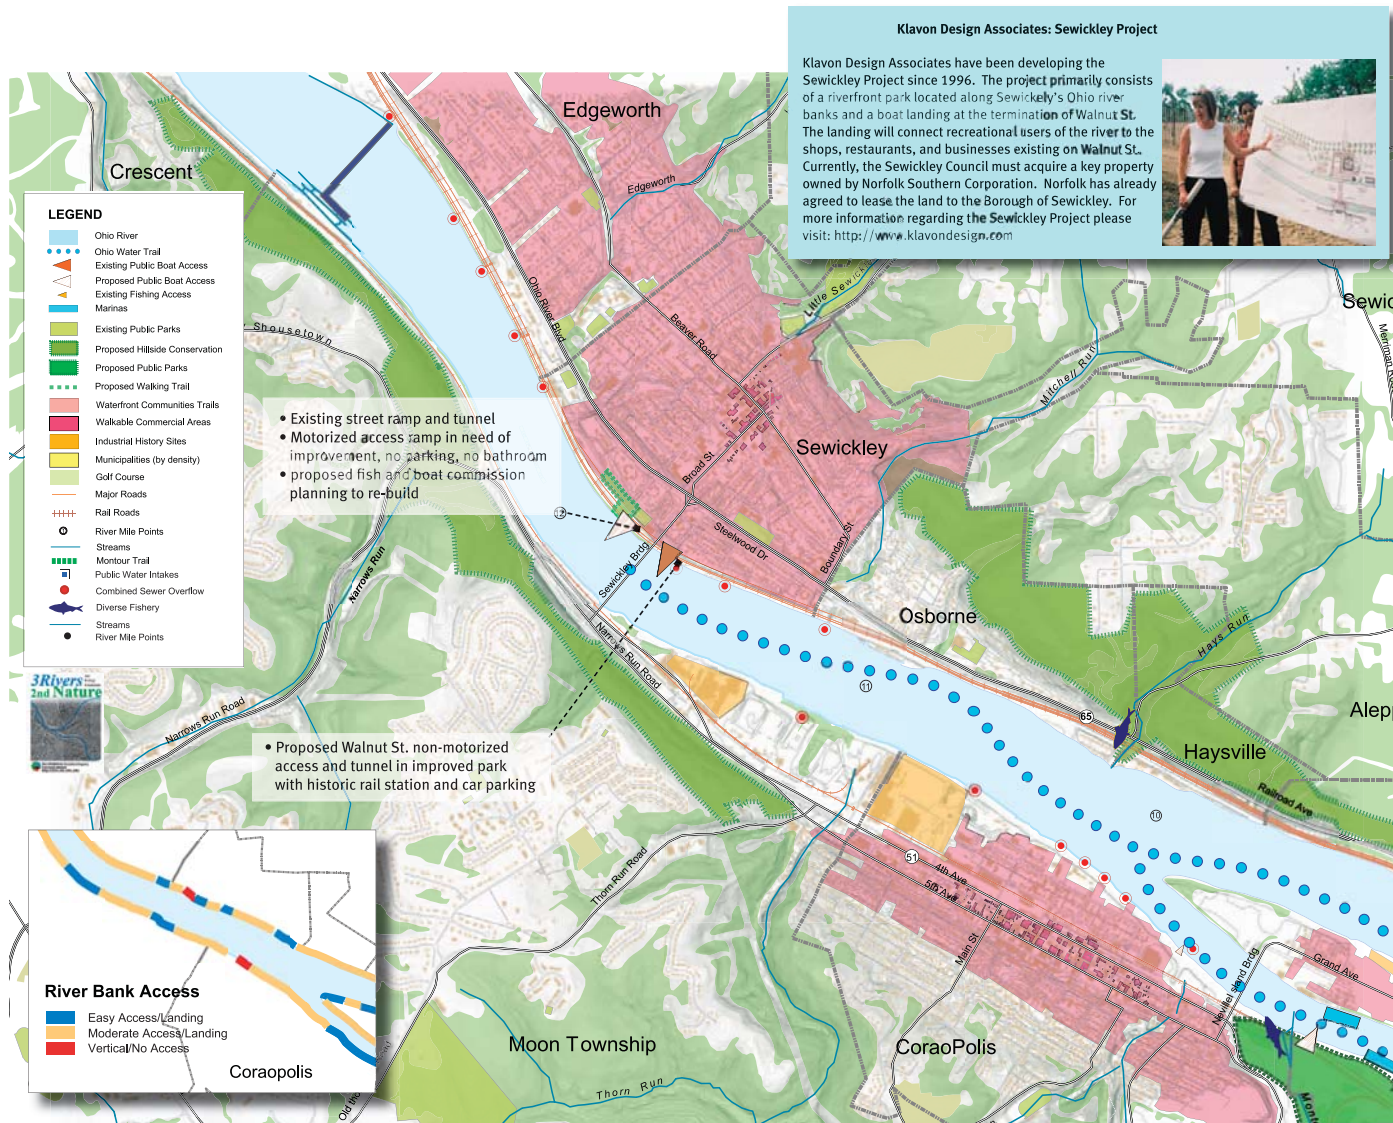

Map 1: Sewickley

We have been boating on the Ohio for the last 20 years and feel like we're on a vacation every day. We meet with friends and have impromptu picnics.

~Mary Lou Lewellyn

My interest lies w/ historical aspects. History tourists are good friends of environment and recreational sites. We have a very historic riverfront, French Indian war, etc. Should really consider educational tours by rail or boat. Understanding of who we are as a people.

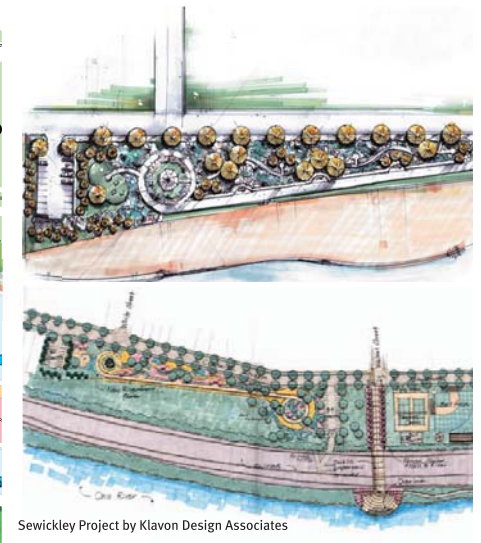

~Doug McGregor

With park in Sewickley you could look at the schools in the short radius and integrate with their programming with educational ideas...

~Charles Cooper

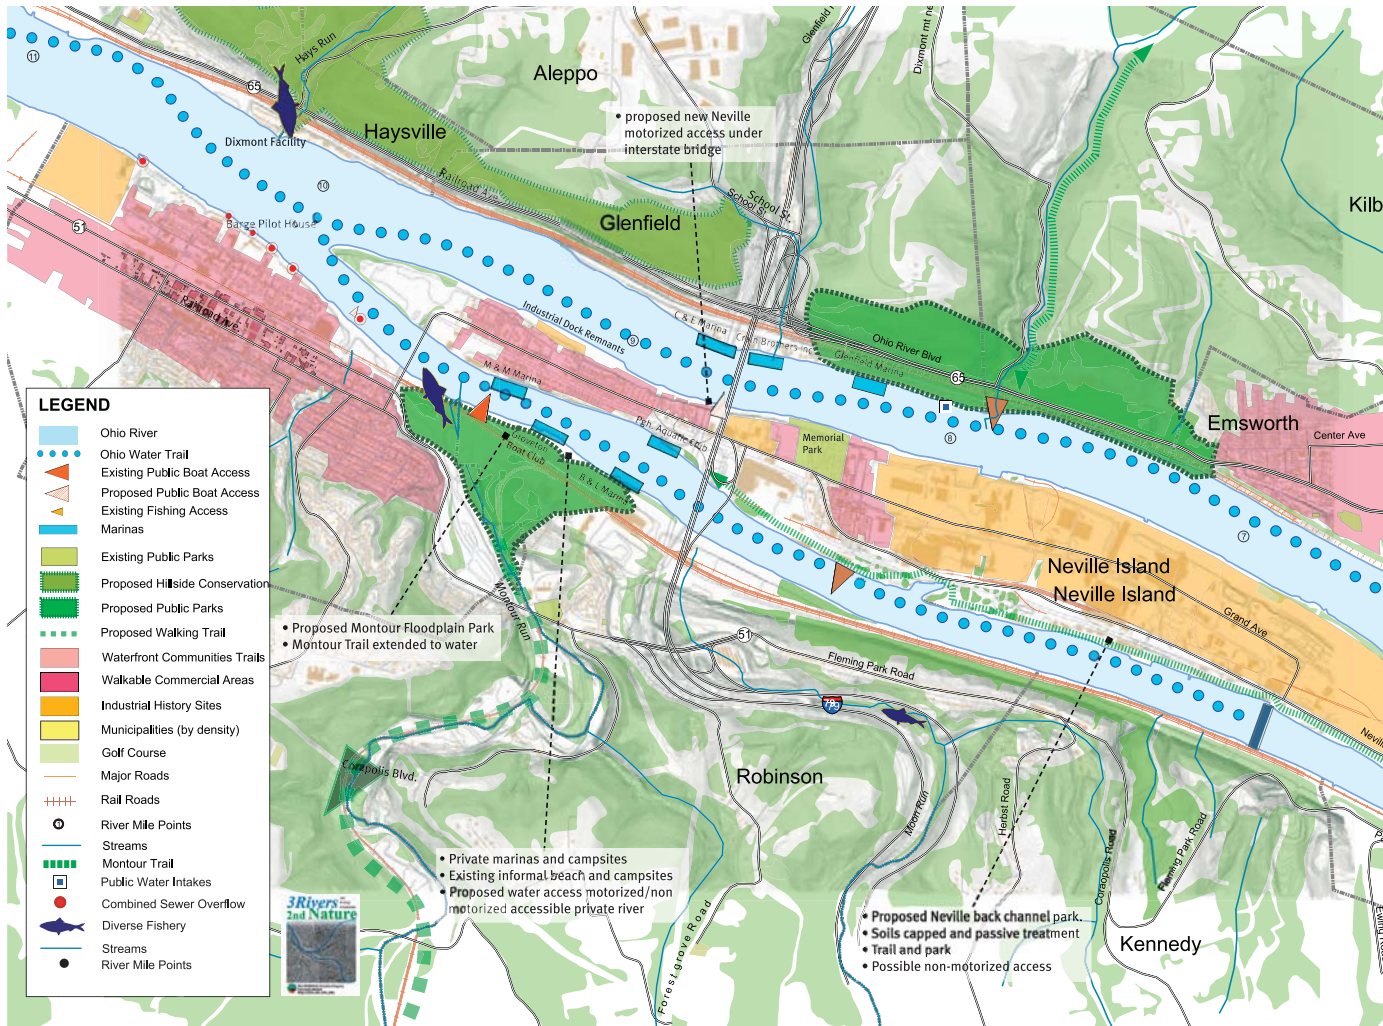

A lot of the older communities have roads that were already laid out to the river... Industry took over, but public right away still exists...In Sewickley these roads are still there.

~John Stephens

Sewickley Project by Klavon Design Associates

Map 2: Neville Island, Montour Run, Coraopolis

The most urgent need I saw today was the need to connect the Montour trail to the river.

~Michael Koryak

There is a beautiful trail along Montour Run. Water has improved dramatically...This trail head stops 400-500 feet above the river...[these are] two wonderful assets that could complement each other that currently don't connect. There is about 5-15 acres of flood plain forest. Woodgreaves and wood ducks and migrating birds congregate along there. Montour run trail has been there about 10 years—it's part of the great Allegheny passage.

~Michael Koryak

No community is [far] away from the river. You have these fragmented native landscapes that are so close to the river.

~Kathleen Murphy

We found a pretty awesome little beach right over that bridge. You have to cross railroad tracks and it's pretty small but nice as far as urban beaches go. If some effort was put into fixing it up, it could be great.

~Zak

The industrial artifacts should be valued—they are part of the fun of looking at what is happening along the river.

~Marge Myers

There was domestic and recreational shoreline right beside industry and chemicals! A real slice of Western PA! In some ways, we just don't see the industry. It's interesting that we have a segmented perception of industry and recreation.

~Denys Candy

