

Friday, February 19, 2010

U.S. Army Corps of Engineers set to reveal plans for New Albany portion of Ohio River Greenway

Business First of Louisville

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the city of New Albany will hold an open house Tuesday, Feb. 23, to unveil plans for the New Albany portion of the Ohio River Greenway, a seven-mile path that will connect the city with neighboring Clarksville and Jeffersonville.

The event will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., at the City-County Building, 311 Hauss Square, New Albany.

The New Albany portion of the project will include improvements to the existing roadway from the city's floodwall and levee east of East Sixth Street to 18th Street and a 1.5-mile multipurpose trail.

The design segment of the project is expected to be completed in early May and construction is expected to begin in July 2010, according to a news release.

The Corps of Engineers is providing $5.5 million in federal money for the project. The Ohio River Greenway Commission is seeking matching funds from local, state and private sources to complete the project.

Additional information about the project can be found at www.ohiorivergreenway.org.